LUSITANIA ONE: John McCallum writes to inform me that any number of errors have been generated in my account of the last episode of the Gamesmaster's Nightmare.

- 1) Germany is entitled to one build.
- 2) The German Fleet in the North Sea is actually ordered to support Belgium
- 3) There was an error in enumerating the ~~points~~ ^{units} to which the game has progressed— it seems that we are in 1906 or something.

I'll print the results when I get home.

and won't there just be Hellto pay... Austria has fallen afoul of our rule #4... we have a double supported standoff in the Low Countries, while in the Balkans there is an excellent example of Chalker's Rule not being applied!

ENGLAND has LON, EDI, NWY, DEN, HOL, SWE, AND REMAINS CONSTANT

AUSTRIA has TRI, VEN, RAP, SER, GRE, and remains constant

FRANCE has 3 hole, SPA, POR, MUN, BEL, TUN, LIP and builds three units

RUSSIA has 4 home, BRE, KIE, NIE, BUD, RUM, and may build three units

TURKEY has 3 home, BUL, and remains constant the saturation point has about been reached in this game; from here on out, there will be no more Winter turns where some powers build while none remove. This would not have been the case this season, if the Austrian unit in Bud had not been annihilated...

Mishaken's Observer...

1967MC press section...

LIVERPUDDLE- Dr Cavour, the noted scientist, today welcomed the French people in a ceremony celebrating the announcement of the "Anglo-French Lunar Colonization Project".

Clyde-The British Committee to End the War in Europe (and England) today released a press statement deplored the use of photon torpedoes in the current dispute between aggravated newsmen and Clyde Vigilantes...

Well, here we go again, another late issue. Well, actually, not late, as there is no set deadline for Miskatonic University, and none of the issues are dated. Nonetheless, we do attempt to run a weekly schedule, and it is tiring to miss a "deadline". This last Sunday, though, I had to attend a National Guard meeting, and there went publishing THAT day. As you would expect, Miskatonic is typed on a typewriter only for half the week, and run off on a ditto at Dan Brannan's place fifteen miles from Walnut Creek...

So what happened to the SuperDiplomacy rules? Well, I have them written up entirely, but typing them out is a bother, especially as I have received no commentary at all on them from the readership. Just to please myself, I will print the entire set, but I feel that nobody will be particularly inconvenienced by their occasional suspension.

For all of you who think you are trading with ARMAGEDDONIA, but haven't seen an issue in a long time, we wish to note that that publication has ceased sending copies to any but players in its current games. No trades are accepted, and, more interestingly, no further subscriptions will be taken by Jim Dugert or Charlie Turner. Instead, the editors are announcing a regular 7-position game of postal Diplomacy to begin some time in the Fall of the year. Individuals who join the game, called the 'compleatists' game', will receive copies of ARMA from the date of their remittance of a game fee, we understand. We understand the tendency of the Fascist mind to suppress publications, but this policy is, in our opinion, ridiculous...

We understand that Richard Shagrin, Bill Bogert, and others of our readers are interested in war-simulation games other than Diplomacy. I am interested also in designing wargames to simulate the tactics of various periods. If any readers would care to publicize their wargames, or hold a general discussion of topics related to the subject of wargaming...
